The Children's Speech and Language Therapy Team at Your Healthcare supports children and young people in the Royal Borough of Kingston and works with children and young people with speech, language and communication needs up to the point they leave full time education.

They offer an phone line where you can speak to a therapist or some practical advice.

Our advice line is open for parents and carers of:

- children who are waiting to be seen by a therapist
- children you are considering referring
- children previously seen by us who are currently waiting for further input

We can provide information, advice, and support to families, carers, educational practitioners and any other professional involved with a child where there are concerns regarding speech, language and communication needs (SLCN).

This advice is provided by an experienced member of the therapy team.
