End of Life Doula UK

Organisation details

Description of activity

End of life doulas provide practical and emotional (plus spiritual if important) support to a person with a terminal diagnosis and those important to them. We work in the person's home as well as hospices, hospitals and care homes. We offer support at any age or stage of illness. Our non-medical role is to preserve the quality of wellbeing, sense of identity and self-worth from the moment we are called upon. The person and those important to them are at the very centre of all we do.
